HOLINESS AND HIGH TARIFF.

The obligations of the reciprocity party to the pamphleteers of Toronto and Montreal are many. The activity of those gentlemen has kindly—though unintentionally—relieved the approvers of the agreement of the bother and expense of preparing, writing, and distributing much campaign literature. It seems to have been generally and wisely concluded by the friends of freer trade that nothing could more surely persuade the public of the justice and prudence of their cause than the arguments advanced against it by the pamphlet-makers of the opposing side.

The correctness of their judgment has been established by the outcome. The growth of reciprocity sentiment has been proportioned to the vigor with which the pens of its enemies have toiled and with the tons of their output which have been shipped—mostly free of postage—through the mails. To see that this coincident growth was not merely a coincidence, one needs only to glance through the pages of any one of the dozens of pamphlets being sent out by the Canadian League and other organizations formed for the purpose of perpetually fettering the shackles of tariff restriction upon the trade of the country. One of the latest of these productions seems to rather exceed the accomplishments of any predecessor in the matter of impudence and general silliness, while it sets an altogether new standard for barefaced irreverence.

As nearly as we can comprehend the purpose of the learned author of this pamphlet, that purpose is to establish the inherent and intimate relationship between holiness and high tariff; between the intentions of the Creator and the mistakes of the creature; between the designs of Providence and the policy of protection. It is his unshaken belief that in the fore-ordained economy of the universe it was intended that nation should separate itself from nation by a tariff wall; that each should strive to live unto itself alone, and to fulfill some supposed destiny or other which contemplated nothing broader than its own boundaries. In plainer words, that men in the aggregate as nations should live in a state of perpetual megation of the laws under which they live as individuals; should tax themselves to make themselves rich; should refuse to buy where they can supply their wants cheapest or to sell where they can get the most for the produce of their labors; should, in a word, arrange their national affairs in the most artificial and cumbersome manner possible and not only carry on affairs in that restrictive and extravagant manner, but must regard it as the only manner approved by the Maker of the Universe.

To spend time opposing the follies of such irreverent drivels as this would be a waste. That it can carry weight in the mind of any man whose opinions are worth winning or retaining is impossible. It needs only to be scanned to produce a nauseating disgust not only with itself but with the cause in whose behalf it is advanced and with the greedy men who hide their covetous designs under the cloak of such blatant and impudent hypocrisy. Saddle upon the Creator of the universe the responsibility for a system by which one man is enriched through the denial of another's rights? Claim Divine sanction for taking something from one without giving him either value for it or the pretense of value, and for giving this to some one who has done nothing to earn it and does not require it? Demand that we shall hold it to be not only politically expedient but our duty to our Maker to swell the purses of the rich at the cost of thinning the purses of the poor? Insist that as a matter of duty and not merely of policy we shall restrict and fetter the trade liberties of the vast majority of the people of a great country, that through their restriction a predatory few may wax wealthy and revel in luxurious ease? In the name of decency and of the religion which some of us cherish, let not the "interests" arraign the Creator as the author of their self-seeking designs. If the Antis have not common sense they might at least pretend to have a sense of the properties.

Reciprocity papers in Ontario have been quoting the prices charged for meats in the United States. As a result, the Ontario packers have been obliged to reduce the prices they have been charging—until the election is over at least. Their alternative was to maintain the prices and to have the issue go before the meat-consumer in this form: "Do you prefer the prices you are now obliged to pay, or the lower prices which prevail across the border?" By dropping the prices they have put the issue before the meat consumer in this form: "Do you prefer the lower prices you are now paying, or the higher prices you were paying last week?" For if reciprocity carries the lower prices will have to be maintained, while if it does not carry the higher prices will be quickly re-established. From the reciprocity standpoint the packers should be tendered a vote of thanks for thus revising the question. They have made it a question of voting for the lower prices which now prevail, or for the higher prices which will prevail again if tariff reduction is defeated. It is now a case of the consumer voting to preserve or to throw away what the packer has been forced to give him. That the threat of reciprocity has accomplished this much is apt to persuade the consumer that the fact of reciprocity would accomplish still more of an equally desirable character.

It is not to be supposed that the fake ballot-box story is the last rookback to be set afoot in this campaign. Unless the ingenuity of its makers has become bankrupt the box story is merely an illustration of what is to be expected, looked for and combatted during the remaining hours of the campaign. The fate of the first rookback should, however, help to discredit any others which may be sprung. A story launched on the eve of an election and with an avowed political purpose is naturally open to suspicion; because if valid it would likely have been launched earlier in the campaign, that the full benefit of it might have been secured. To this natural suspicion which attaches to a yarn spun when a reply is not possible, will be added the recollection that the engineers of the opposition campaign in this riding have been already convicted under oath of a fraud as baseless and as malicious as could well be conceived. To the man who inquires about the truth of a story before he believes it, this recollection will not be of assistance to the Antis. They have already stamped themselves as unworthy of confidence, and must expect that what they say in future will be accordingly discounted.

At Sudbury Mr. Bourassa said Mr. Borden has revised his navy policy along the lines laid down by himself, and that it is now quite satisfactory to the Nationalists. He intimated that if it were not satisfactory he would not be campaigning for Borden candidates. Mr. Borden has not denied Mr. Bourassa's statement. It is therefore, to be taken as the truth. What do the Conservatives of the country think of this open and undenied declaration that their leader has made an agreement to govern himself in Imperial matters according to the dictation of a man who declares that Canada should break away from England at the first opportunity? That he has in fact already altered his naval policy to suit the ideas of this man and for the purpose of getting his support?

One service Mr. Bourassa has already done in his Ontario campaign. He has made clear to the British-born, on the high-

A Message of Intense Interest

Steadily and rapidly this great store takes on its finished appearance, and by Friday night the workmen will have a complete transformation in appearance both inside and out.

Counters, fixtures and showrooms are being loaded with a dazzling array of this seasons most attractive goods, charming millinery; rich furs; lovely dresses; and gowns, and the multitude of other things which go to make up a modern department store.

Come on Saturday then, and revel in the displays of beautiful new goods at prices that eastern stores themselves would be proud to present to their patrons.

Our final opening announcement will have a message of intense interest to everyone—watch for it in the daily papers.

James Ramsey Tegler Block First St.

est authority, the conscience-deception which has been practised upon them in appealing for their votes on the ground that Mr. Borden is the ultra-loyal political leader in Canada. On the declaration of Mr. Bourassa, Mr. Borden has altered his naval policy to make it acceptable to Mr. Bourassa. That should make clear enough to the Englishman that he has been treated as a fool by the party which has been adjuring him in the name of his patriotism to vote for Mr. Borden's candidate. The naval policy Mr. Bourassa approves is the policy of no naval assistance to Great Britain in any way or under any circumstances. That is the policy the Englishman in Canada is told he ought to vote for.

Mr. Borden has issued another appeal for mercy. It is opportune. With the infamous alliance between himself and the faction headed by Mr. Bourassa—whose avowed purpose is to sever the relations of Canada with the Mother Land—made clear beyond all possibility of doubt or denial, it is up to Mr. Borden to say what he can think of to mitigate the wrath of the people he has attempted to deceive. Posing as the champion of Imperialism he has struck hands with the open and declared enemies of Imperialism. Bidding for the votes of the British-born on the ground that he is more loyal than his opponent, he has made an agreement which if successful would establish a government under the dictation of Mr. Bourassa in all matters touching the relations of Canada with Great Britain and the other British Dominions. Mr. Borden is the greatest political humbug Canada has yet produced.

Vote. Every reciprocity vote should be polled, no matter how certain victory may be. It is not enough that the agreement be approved. It should be so overwhelmingly approved that when Parliament re-assembles the Opposition will not dare to again resort to obstruction tactics to further delay its passage. Reciprocity being a good thing, the sooner we get it the better. The most effective way of assuring its early passage by Parliament is to poll so large a vote for the agreement that those who oppose it will understand clearly that it has the approval of the public, and that the public will deal as they deserve with any who seek to thwart their wishes.

Vote early. The polls may be crowded later on. Many will find it possible to vote only at noon and in the last hour the polls are open. To accommodate these, all who can do so should vote in the slackier hours of the morning and the early afternoon.

Don't bother about the rookback. It was made by those who have been proven on oath to have perpetrated a ballot-box fake.

The Ottawa Journal compares Mr. Bourassa to a volcano. The figure is a good one. A volcano is a purely destructive agency.

A vote for reciprocity is a vote for the broader opportunity.

THE POLITICAL OPERA.

(W. M. Mackenzie in Montreal Herald.)

Principal: R. L. Borden, Henry Bourassa, Col. R. H. Hughes, Arthur Lavergne, Clifford Hinton and Joe Martin.

Chorus of doctile oppositionists, assisted by snipers from the Manufacturers' Association in the rear.

Projected manifestos as stage managers.

Standardized newspapers operate the limelight.

Principals together.

We are a motley company.

Of diverse weight and measure.

Before the show is done you'll see We'll give you some surprise.

R. L. Borden (frantically clutching the Union Jack).

The flag which in my hand I hold Is Britain's emblem grand.

Our fathers marched beneath its fold; It floats above this land.

It triumphed o'er the Czarism, And o'er the slave and Infidel.

And we won't trade with Uncle Sam For fear the flag he will seize.

We'll give the Mother Country ships And coin to spend at will.

Col. R. H. Hughes (creating an orange lily).

I am a man of war, you bet— Of blood and iron, sir, sir.

And not a word married.

Like yonder Joseph Martin, Upon the Taffelberg I ran and rave And sing the song "Boysie Water".

What's anti-British Protestants I would resist with slaughter.

Chorus: In life and death, in life and death, For Empire and the Flag.

For Empire and the Flag.

Henry Bourassa (faintly clapping the Union Jack).

This evening which I hold on high Three colors stand as sentinels.

And these three colors typify

Religion, language, race.

To guard these heritage yet We must ourselves entrench:

We're British now, but never forget That first of all we're French.

I used to think free trade was best; But now I'm not so keen.

I can but see French influence pressed To guard our marine.

Who'd rather have no armament Than battle ships that might be sent To fight in Britain's wars.

Chorus: He fears French infants will be sent.

To fight in Britain's wars.

Joe Martin.

I am a doctile warrior Like that old Pope anathema;

I fought for Wilfrid Laurier And lost him Manitoba.

I don't believe in a tariff, And made a noise in Britain;

But wasn't a word married.

Col. Hughes: I like reciprocity.

But wants to see it smitten.

Col. R. H. Hughes (creating an orange lily).

I am a man of war, you bet— Of blood and iron, sir, sir.

And not a word married.

Like yonder Joseph Martin, Upon the Taffelberg I ran and rave And sing the song "Boysie Water".

What's anti-British Protestants I would resist with slaughter.

Chorus: What's anti-British Protestants I would resist with slaughter.

He would resist with slaughter.

Armand Lavergne:

For naught but fame I care a straw— To win this contest we cannot lose.

And like Boulanger Bourassa

I'm something of a dandy.

I'd stand on England's burning deck— I said it in Toronto;

But to repeat it in Quebec I really don't want to.

Chorus: To say he went to Quebec.

Clifford Hinton:

I was a mighty man west of Lake Superior.

I was the Minister of the Interior; I made fortune then by land speculation.

Everything is lovely now with me and the nation.

CORRESPONDENCE

GRIENBACH'S FAKE BALLOT BOX

Editor Bulletin.

Sir: As it seems to be the fashion these days to discuss the question of stuffing ballot boxes I will have to mix up in the row. You remember that when W. A. Griesbach showed that ballot box at the Thistle Inn he said that these boxes were for use in stuffing districts where they could not get scrutineers.

Now the ordinary voter thinks just as I would think if I had never been a scrutineer at an election. He thinks such boxes as Mr. Griesbach showed that night were used by the Liberals could of course open the box and count or miscount the votes just as they pleased, whether or not the scrutineers or not. It is to correct such an impression that I am writing this article.

In the last Dominion election I acted as a scrutineer for Mr. Anderson, the farmers' candidate, in the polling district of Heather Hills. Inside me there were two Conservative and one Liberal scrutineers. In this particular voting place at least the Conservatives were well supplied with scrutineers as you may guess. I will be in every voting place during the coming election. The candidates voted for were Con. Day; Libs. McIntyre and Anderson.

We watched the election judge open the ballot box and hold it up before him and shake it to make sure that there were no votes already in it. Then he locked it up and from that time on until the votes were all deposited and ready to be counted the ballot box was not to be opened. It would have been impossible for anyone to have got into the box without us being able to see him. When the time came to open the box we counted the votes. There were twenty-two votes cast in all if I remember the number correctly. Mr. Anderson received 12, McIntyre 7, and Day 3.

The votes were counted by the returning officer in Weiskampt to be counted and the result of the election placed in the hands of the judge. This is something the way it looked.

SCHULTE IS AFTER HOME RUN RECORD

Club's Star Hitter Fielder Threatens to Smash Back Batteries in Home Run Race

Although he has been in the National League for seven seasons, Frank Schulte, right fielder for the Cubs, has only developed a certain reputation for his "bunt" all over the country. Today "bunt" all over the country is keeping him tabs on Schulte's work. He has been expected to better the record for the number of home runs batted out in one season by a major league player. John Freeman now holds the record. He made Washington famous in 1889 by slugging out twenty-five drives for the complete circuit.

Schulte's career as a minor and major league player has been interesting. Frank is a bright fellow. He has one "bobby" which is his principal diversion in the "off" season. Even when the Cubs are travelling around he will not let his bobby go. He will take it with him to the hotel at which the Cubs are stopping. He will receive a letter from his bobby. At his home in Pyracone Schulte has a small stable of race horses, and he takes a great delight in driving his favorite around the state. He has a fine race track laid out in a racing alley.

Schulte started his professional career in his home town of Pyracone, where he played for the Pyracone club. He was then traded to the New York City Giants. Schulte played last fall for the Pyracone club. He was one of the most powerful forces in the Pyracone club. He was one of the strongest in the Pyracone club. He was one of the strongest in the Pyracone club.

Schulte was secured by Chicago near the close of 1904 and in that year played twenty games with the Cubs. Before he left the minor leagues Schulte was the Pyracone club's star. He was the Pyracone club's star. He was the Pyracone club's star. He was the Pyracone club's star. He was the Pyracone club's star.

Schulte, to date has twenty-one home runs to his credit. He has made twenty-seven home runs. He has made twenty-seven home runs. He has made twenty-seven home runs. He has made twenty-seven home runs. He has made twenty-seven home runs.

For the season of 1904 to the conclusion of last season Schulte has made twenty-seven home runs. He has made twenty-seven home runs. He has made twenty-seven home runs. He has made twenty-seven home runs. He has made twenty-seven home runs.

His record as a batter since he has been with Chicago follows:

Year	Games	Average	Home Runs
1904	29	.287	1
1905	128	.274	1
1906	142	.287	2
1907	142	.287	2
1908	142	.287	2
1909	142	.287	2
1910	142	.287	2

UP-TO-THE-MINUTE NEWS OF ALL SPORTS

ELECTION BETS SHOW THE REAL PUBLIC SENTIMENT

Public sentiment on an election can be judged fairly accurately by the betting that is made on the probable result. By this standard there apparently is no Conservative in the city who is willing to wager that Hon. Mr. Oliver will have less than 1,200 majority, or that the Government will have less than a majority of 25.

Both the return of the Government and the election of Mr. Oliver are conceded by the bitterest Conservatives when it comes to the time that money is required to back up their beliefs.

To the sporting man the Deacon's Cigar Store is the centre of the betting. A blackboard here records the various wagers that are offered from day to day.

Here are some:

A leading Conservative was so doubtful of the result that he posted one thousand dollars that Griesbach would not lose his deposit, i.e., he would have half as many votes as Oliver. In 1908, despite Oliver's majority of 2317, Hyndman saved his deposit by several hundred.

$100 even that Oliver will have 1200 majority. $300 even that the Liberals will have 25 majority. $500 to $100 that Douglas will win in Strathcona. $50 even that Clark will win in Red Deer.

No Conservative has yet come forward to accept any of these bets.

Probably the largest wager made was $1000 wagered by a Strathcona man against $50 placed by an Edmonton real estate agent that Oliver would be elected. The odds were twenty to one, but at that it is quite safe.

Earlier in the campaign some bets were made and accepted that Oliver would have 1200 majority and that he would have 500 in the city alone.

EASTERN LEAGUE HAS GIVEN STAR CATCHERS

Has Purchased Many of Best Hitters in American League

The sale of Catcher Ben Ryan by Baltimore to Omaha makes for $15000 recalls the fact that many of the best catchers in the big league today came from the Eastern League. Jimmy Archer of the Chicago Cubs went to Detroit from the Eastern league and later was sent to the Cubs. In Thomas of the Athletics was the catcher for Jack Dunne's Providence team when it won the Eastern league championship. Highway Jennings also got Thomas, but later sent him to the Athletics. Jack Lapp, also with the Athletics, branched out from the Eastern League.

The New York Yankees got Walter Hoge from Rochester by paying about $5000 last season. Bill Mitchell, who was with the Yankees last year and turned back to Rochester this season, was formerly a pitcher with Toronto before being turned into a catcher. Bill Williams went from Rochester to the Philadelphia Athletics last season. He was a first baseman with the Athletics.

Don't forget George Gibson of the Athletics. He was with the Athletics last season. He was a first baseman with the Athletics.

Fire Chiefs Meet in Milwaukee. Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 19.—Many subjects pertaining to the duties of fire chiefs will be discussed from every angle at the thirty-ninth convention of the International Association of Fire Engineers, which met in Milwaukee today. About 800 members of the association will attend the convention, which is the opening this forenoon. The opening exercises consisted of the usual address of welcome by Mayor Emil Scherger, the responses being made by President John Thompson, Toronto, Canada. An exhibit of many pieces of the latest fire-fighting apparatus will be one of the features of the gathering.

James Bequithville for Cooks. Montreal, Sept. 19.—That a juror who has been regularly summoned to court has failed to appear, and is responsible for all the extra costs incurred through the postponement of the case, was the warning given by Justice Denner in the Superior court today when a case brought by the latter over the absence of the juror.
